Hello... Shwmae.... Bonjour.....
Guten Tag.... Hallo... Dia duit

Welcome (or Croeso as we prefer to say) to Southern Wales

You may already have an idea what to expect from a trip to Southern Wales.

We are split into ten distinctive areas, each with their own character and charm. The areas of Blaenau Gwent, Blaenavon, Caerphilly, Merthyr and Rhondda Cynon Taf are well known for their history and heritage, whilst nearby Monmouthshire is more rural and famed for its fabulous food and drink. Newport and Cardiff are thriving cities with some world class attractions whilst along Bridgend and the Vale of Glamorgan is a mix of coastal resorts, market towns and fabulous countryside.

We have plenty of castles and museums but we also have the Bannau Brycheiniog / Brecon Beacons National Park, the start of the Wales Coast Path and the Wye Valley National Landscape.

We also have some things you may not associate with us. There are the remains of a Roman amphitheatre and barracks, vineyards producing award winning wine and a great big sculpture, soaring 20 metres into the sky and standing guard over the Valleys below.

Each of our areas has its own guide. So have a flick through this one and then take a look at the companion brochures and before long you'll be planning your trip to Southern Wales.

Discover Monmouthshire

Nestled between the Wye Valley National Landscape, Bannau Brycheiniog (Brecon Beacons) National Park, Blaenavon World Heritage Site and the low-lying cultural landscape of the Gwent Levels, welcome to Wales' food capital!

Situated on the Wales / England border, this area was once fiercely contested. Thankfully the area's more peaceful today, though reminders of the past turmoil remain with nine castles dotted across its rolling countryside.

Castles aren't the only historic buildings on offer. There's the romantic ruins of Tintern Abbey in the heart of the Wye Valley, Llanthony Priory in the secluded Vale of Ewyas and the restored Shire Hall in Monmouth, scene of the infamous Chartist trial of 1840.

You can't visit the area without tasting some of Wales' best food and drink.

Widely known as the food capital of Wales, Monmouthshire has four vineyards (all offering tours and tastings) as well as gin distilleries, micro-breweries, cider orchards and a wide range of high quality eating places – including traditional country pubs and cafes as well as hotels offering award winning high teas.

With such great food on offer it's no surprise that we have our own internationally recognised food festival in Abergavenny, held annually in September.

Look out for some hidden gems including Dewstow Gardens (buried under tons of earth for over 50 years), St Mary's Priory Church in Abergavenny with its historic monuments and medieval carvings, Wales Perfumery in Monmouth (the only fragrance house in Wales) and Rockfield Studios where Queen famously recorded 'Bohemian Rhapsody'.

Maps and Travel Information

Easy to get to

We're a different country with our own language and culture, yet we're surprisingly easy to get to. We're only around two hours down the M4 from London whilst Birmingham and the West Midlands are only an hour or so from our borders.

So in next to no time you could be here, immersing yourself in our culture and traditions and who knows maybe even trying to get your tongue around our language. Croeso - or welcome in English.

We're not very big, but we certainly fit a lot in – and getting around the region couldn't be easier. A comprehensive road system links all the major towns, while many towns and villages are well served by the local train network which connects with the mainline stations.

The Picturesque Wye Tour

It's more than 250 years since William Gilpin took a boat tour down the River Wye in 1770. It was an event which heralded the birthplace of British tourism, making the Wye Tour one of the first 'package holidays'.

Gilpin was a pioneer of the 'Picturesque' and his ideas led to the concepts of landscape appreciation and conservation, culminating in the designation of protected landscapes. These included our National Parks and Landscapes, one of which is the Wye Valley National Landscape (formerly known as an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty) which was designated in 1971.

Explore the landscape that inspired William Gilpin, J M W Turner and William Wordsworth (among many others) and learn about the Picturesque.

Highlights include:

- Ross on Wye
- Goodrich Castle
- Symonds Yat
- Monmouth
- Tintern Abbey
- Chepstow Castle
